

LENN STILL SUPREME IN RED RUSSIA

Would lend money to private individuals or to groups of private individuals for private factories which observe the labor laws. These factories must be conducted under the regulation of the trade unions, this being part of the law of the State.

Referring to concessions and foreign trade, M. Milutin said:

"Insufficient funds of merchandise will be augmented through foreign exchange. Through the conclusion of our treaties with other countries, the government of Soviet Russia has already entered into one phase of the realization of this plan. We must have foreign trade in order that the peasants shall procure merchandise. Without such development it is impossible to solve the food problem."

It seems apparent that the Soviet government desires to retain control of the industries. It is also apparent that however fast it may go in compromise or retreat, Nicolai Lenin remains in supreme command of the situation.

Russia Is Communist At Heart, Krassin, Lenin Trade Diplomat Aserts

By International News Service.

LONDON, June 4.—The Communists controlling Russia have retreated economically, but they have not been routed, declared Leonid Krassin, Bolshevik trade envoy, in a statement here today explaining the new Soviet policy.

M. Krassin, who has just returned from Moscow, where the Communist Party under Lenin's new program, said that the action does not mean that Russia will "become capitalist."

"Industrial reconstruction is going forward in Russia," said M. Krassin. "Food is still the great problem. The failure of last year's harvests owing to drought brought about a terrible shortage. We still have some months to go before the new crop is in. Good rains have fallen lately and the prospect is much better. What Russia wants more than anything else is two or three good harvests."

"As regards any re-establishment of capitalism in Russia, I say this: Our new peasant policy is a retreat economically, but it is not a retreat. Our foreign trade relations must mean a certain amount of compromise, but it does not mean that we have decided to be Communists or that Russia is going to turn into a capitalist state."

"Remember, we said at the very beginning that unless the Russian revolution was followed by a European revolution, Russia must compromise to some extent for a time."

Russian Gold Reserve Purely Mythical, Foreign Diplomatic Advises Declare

By International News Service.

Russia has been almost completely "cleaned" of its gold supply, reliable diplomatic advisers today declared.

The Soviet government, the dispatches said, has practically exhausted all the gold it possessed in payment for goods brought in from contiguous countries.

Most of the gold which has come out of Russia since the Soviet government has reached neutral countries, after being delivered in neutral capitals of the gold has been melted into bars and now bears the stamp of some of the neutral governments.

Large amounts of this gold already has reached America. Much of it has borne the mint stamp of the Swedish government. Under this, or other guarantees it is being accepted at United States Affairs offices.

WOMAN, ACQUITTED OF MURDER, FINDS BONDS

Securities valued at $25,000 were lost and recovered at Freeport, L. I., by Mrs. Florence Carmen, who was acquitted of a charge of killing Mrs. Lulu Dailley in the office of Dr. Edwin Carmen, her husband. The securities were lost while Mrs. Carmen was riding with her husband in an automobile. Franklin Beden, of the Street Cleaning Department, had dumped them into his refuse wagon without paying particular attention to them. He heard of the Carmen loss, searched through the refuse, found the envelopes and turned them over to the police.

COURT DECISIONS MENACED BY 'LEAK,' HAPGOOD ASSERTS

Writer Declares Giving of Advance Information Should Be Prevented by Law.

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.

The case of the leak in the Supreme Court has taken another step. On account of the death of Judge Gould the briefs in the case had to be filed over again. The charge is that Justice McKenna's former secretary gave out advance information, and that he and his friends speculated in stocks on the basis of advance knowledge.

The defense is that these facts were not subject to legal penalty, although reprehensible. Whether they were technically criminal or not is for the court to determine. That they were not only wrong in a high degree, but capable of very serious consequences, is certain.

The decisions of the Supreme Court are the best kept secrets in Washington. Often it takes months to write the decisions after they are actually reached. These delayed decisions often have the most extensive bearings on business interests. Often they bear on industrial conflicts. Lawyers are always trying to find out in advance what they are going to be.

Only a little while ago an attempt was being made to gather information about the outcome of the case against the United Mine Workers. The intention was, if the verdict against the miners was affirmed, to start cases against them all over the country in the attempt to destroy their unions.

A case that aroused great interest among lawyers, as well as among loan agents and farmers, was the farm loan case. In spite of every effort nobody was able to obtain an inkling of the result until the decision was actually rendered.

One of the most admirable things about our Supreme Court is the success with which its secrets have been kept. When it is realized that every one in the justices has a secretary, and that clerical assistance is also involved, the success with which leaks are avoided, becomes in the highest degree commendable.

To break down this standard is a very serious offense, whatever may be the legal technicalities about whether or not it constitutes in law a fraud against the United States, which is the theory on which the indictment is drawn.

The employee who undertakes to break down this tradition, this high trust, for his own gain is engaged in a wicked enterprise. He must in every possible way be checked.

It is understood that Attorney General Daugherty takes this view of the matter and that the case will be prosecuted energetically with the view of not merely punishing these offenders, but still more of impressing both on men in positions of trust and on speculators in Wall Street that any conspiracy to use such information for gain will be a dangerous undertaking.

GIRL RECOGNIZES TO TRAP GUNDEIN STILLMAN CASE

Beauvais Sees Banker's Hand In Advances Made to Him By Mystery Charming.

not say and can only conjecture. It looks as though she might be trying to frame some one. She has plenty of diamonds to pawn if she really is short of funds."

The woman appeared at the cashier's desk of the hotel last Monday and attempted to cash a $500 draft on the Second National Bank of New York. When informed by Beauvais that Stillman is a director of that bank, she replied:

"Well, this is not Jimmy's money that I'm using. You don't quite think any way that I would go on the stand against you, do you? Why, look at me. I'm too frail to stand the remarks those lawyers would make. I really am just a poor girl and like you so much, Fred. That's why I'm so persistent. You are too suspicious."

HOME IN CLEVELAND.

The alleged fraudulent "Bessie Love" is five feet four inches tall, has bright golden brown hair, brown eyes, and is slender. She has a small scar above her left eye and a small scar on her right cheek. She declares her home is in Cleveland when she is not working in pictures in Los Angeles.

This correspondent today came into temporary possession of semi-endorsement letters signed "Bessie Love," and addressed to Fred Beauvais. The text of one of them follows:

"Called many times at your home and also office, but without any luck. I hope you receive this letter. If so, meet me Monday at 6 o'clock, Hotel Windsor, in lobby. I'll see you there and please try. If you are not there, that is, should business keep you away, call me there at that time and have them page me."

This letter was dated Friday, 10:20 p. m., and was written on May 26, it continued:

"I make the engagement later, but should you not meet me there or call me or leave no note at desk, then I shall know you don't care to meet me. Otherwise I am waiting to see you there at 6 in the lobby."

WOULD WEAR FLOWERS.

Up to the writing of this letter, the second penned by the self-represented "Bessie Love," Beauvais had not met the woman he thinks was a charmer sent by Stillman to try to lure him from his code of moral conduct. The latter girl said:

"Just look for a pair of brown eyes and light hair. Don't know just what I'll wear, as that would be hard to say so far ahead, but anyway, I shall forget the flowers and wear a simple dress. I am hoping to meet you on said date."

The letter closes with a reminder about "Windsor Hotel, 6 Monday" and two roughly-executed pen pictures, one of which is supposed to be that of Mrs. Weber, and the other of Beauvais. She added a postscript which read:

"Suppose you think me a little flirt, but honestly I am not. Just because I love you so much, I want to see you when I can. I have interrupted the perusal of missives on my desk, the first letter cannot be recalled verbatim by the correspondent, but it contained some semi-endorsement phrases."

ATTRACTED BY SUIT.

It recounted how the mythical "Bessie Love" had been in connection with the Stillman divorce drama and how the woman was "drawn" to his picture and how she admired his bravery and code of living.

The first letter asking permission to see Beauvais came two days after the woman arrived at the hotel on May 16, last. Beauvais, who has received hundreds of such letters, and the "nut" letters from long distance admirers, had been with the woman, who together with others, who have noted the signature "Miss Bessie Love," and re-read references to her purported place in the film world.

ARRESTS CAUSE SURPRISE.

The arrest of the negroes in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Weber was a surprise to some officials. Only yesterday Detective Sergeant Peter B. Bradley, of the Baltimore police department, who had been investigating the case at the instigation of Governor Ritchie, went to Detroit to arrest a white man, a former suitor of Mrs. Weber, as the slayer.

Dempsey-Carpentier Fight Is O. K. With Uncle Sam

By International News Service.

Attorney General Daugherty will not interfere with plans for the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, and a deaf ear will be turned to appeals asking the Government to stop the fray, it was officially declared at the Department of Justice today.

The formal protest of the Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, head of the International Reform Bureau, sent to the Attorney General from Lincoln, Neb., asking him to prevent the fight, had not reached the Department early today.

Skirmishes Reported in Half a Dozen Silesian Towns—British Aid Defenders.

By FRANK MASON.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

BERLIN, June 4.—Polish insurgents have opened heavy firing along the Silesian front following a brief lull in the hostilities, said advices from Oppeln today.

The Poles have captured Turawa from the German volunteers, who evacuated the town after losing ten men killed and wounded.

Polish armored trains are bombarding the town of Slawa.

An attack was launched by the Polish insurgents east of Annaberg, but it was repulsed.

Near Brzenitz and Gregorowitz the Poles attempted to force crossings of the river Oder, but were driven back.

The Poles occupied Pleiss, but later evacuated the city, according to information from Breslau. Sixty German policemen at Pleiss were taken prisoner by the insurgents.

WOUNDED VET, OUT OF WORK, SOUGHT BY HIS MOTHER

Douglas W. Bliven Disappears After Leaving House to Accept Job He'd Landed.

Believing that injuries received in the world war, coupled with the fact that he had been out of employment for several weeks may have affected his mental condition, Mrs. Marguerite Bliven, mother of Douglas W. Bliven, a Washington Times Bureau Missing Persons to aid in the search for her brother, Douglas W. Bliven, twenty-six years old, who disappeared from his home 2016 P street northwest Thursday.

According to Mrs. Avery, her brother had been out of work for four weeks, but obtained a position last Wednesday as deputy marshal in the Washington Police Department. He was to report for work Thursday. He left his home Thursday morning, presumably to go to work, but failed to report at the municipal court. He has not been heard from since.

"My mother is almost prostrated, and we are all worried sick over his sudden disappearance," said Mrs. Avery today.

Since his return from France, she said, where he was severely wounded, he has been very nervous. Work over his physical condition, together with lack of employment before obtaining a new job, may have affected his mind, she said.

Bliven, at the time of his disappearance, was attired in a light tan suit, tan shoes and a straw hat. He is described as 5.7 in height, black hair and brown eyes and weighs about 180 pounds.

RED CROSS PROBE BY CONGRESS IS ASKED BY VOLK

Wants Full Light Turned on Financial Affairs and Treatment of Disabled Vets.

Congressman Lester D. Volk of New York, late yesterday introduced in the House a resolution calling for a sweeping investigation of the Red Cross.

The investigation is not to be confined to the one specific character of irregularity disclosed in affidavits of disabled soldiers published in the New York American, but is to be a broad investigation of all the financial affairs of the Red Cross.

In this connection the New York American will offer to Congress "une unpublishing evidence that will startle the American public."

Volk's resolution follows:

"Whereas, the American Red Cross is an organization incorporated by Act of Congress for certain purposes and among its activities is the care of shell-shocked, wounded, and disabled veterans of the world war; and whereas, since the termination of the world war many thousands of shell-shocked, wounded, and disabled veterans have applied to the American Red Cross for such services as it has 'voluntarily' offered to the public as ready and willing to perform;

GETS MILLIONS YEARLY.

"Whereas, in order to carry out its purpose the American Red Cross solicits and receives subscriptions from the American people amounting to many millions of dollars yearly; and whereas, statements appeared on May 25, 1921, and daily thereafter in the columns of the New York American, showing that many disabled soldiers applied to the New York and Brooklyn chapters of the American Red Cross and were referred by the officials of these organizations to private law firms, who charged fees for their services and exploited shell-shocked veterans as a means of private gain;

"Whereas, the statements, if true, would show that this exploitation of the disabled veteran for private gain is done with the knowledge of the officials of these chapters of the American Red Cross;

"Whereas, the hundreds of thousands of people who contribute yearly to the support of this organization do so in the belief that the American Red Cross is a patriotic organization of the officials and bureaus of this Government and is performing these functions;

"Whereas, the subscribers of these vast funds are entitled to know by what manner the American Red Cross performs its aforesaid functions and how these vast sums are being handled and where they are expended;

TO GET WHOLE TRUTH.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that a select committee of five members of the House be and they be, by the Speaker and is authorized, directed, and empowered to investigate and procure all facts and to inquire into the truth of the statements that have appeared in the New York American as aforesaid; the relations of the American Red Cross to the United States bureau and other Government agencies, and to what extent these agencies have delegated their powers and rely on the American Red Cross for the care of wounded and disabled soldiers; the various kinds of service performed; what moneys are received by the American Red Cross from the Government and from the public, and the manner of handling and distribution of such funds, particularly how much is spent upon salaries for officers and what amount is distributed for relief; what fees, if any, are exacted from individuals applying to the American Red Cross for assistance; the relation between the American Red Cross and private agencies to whom the applicant is referred; to inquire into the relations between the American Red Cross and the Government of the United States, the public at large, and the returned wounded, shell-shocked and disabled soldiers."
